6th October 2017

VLM Airlines returns to the legendary route between Antwerp and London City Airport on 30th October

3-4 daily services on weekdays and 2 daily flights on Sundays

After an absence of more than nine years, VLM Airlines will be flying again on the historic route between Antwerp Airport and London City Airport. Seats are already on sale via the travel agents.

Since 1993 Antwerp and London are linked with a direct flight, first by VLM Airlines (from 1993 until 2008) then Cityjet. Earlier this month Cityjet announced that it is to quit its activities on the route with effect from 27th October 2017.

Marcel Buelens, CEO of Antwerp & Ostend-Bruges Airports is delighted that VLM Airlines will be flying between both cities and thus will ensure the continuity of the route for frequent travellers: "The Antwerp-London City route is of great importance because it directly links two of the most important economic centres in Europe. The route has proven to be the fastest travel alternative for both Business people as leisure passengers wanting to travel between these two cities as both airports offer short check-in times, short walking distances and are both located close to the city centres."

Richard Hill, Chief Commercial Officer at London City Airport said: "We welcome the return of VLM Airlines to London City to operate this speedy and convenient Antwerp route, which is the only connection between a UK airport to Belgium's second largest city. The link is particularly valued by frequent flyers on business, and VLM's commencement of services on 30 October ensures business as usual for passengers."

The VLM Airlines services between London City Airport and Antwerp will commence on 30th October. On Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays there will be three daily services in each direction and on Thursdays and Fridays four daily services. On Sundays VLM Airlines will operate two return flights.

Seats can already be booked via the travel agents. Soon the online booking facility will also be available on the new website.

In the following days VLM Airlines will announce further details about its Winter flying programme 2017-2018.
